Nitra considers general pardon to all black structures. The town would forgive penalties to their owners and legalize the structures. „Of course they would have to pay the real estate tax. The law enables to impose the tax backward within three years, “the mayor Jozef Dvonč, told. It is one of the proposed measures by the municipal council, the goal of which is to increase incomes to the town budget in connection with the economic crisis, by him. Legalization would concern all structures in the town area - small structures, for example in the inhabitants' gardens as well as objects of firms. The town headquarters did not take a think till now, that the self-administration would prove illegal proceeds by this step. I am not able to judge it this way, I confess, that I did not take a thought much till now about it, it only was the proposal of the office, which would help to have things relating to taxes out,“ Dvonč told and added, that they only investigate the problem and the particular proposal has not been submitted yet.
