The main area, which Slovakia needs to focus on in assessing its creditworthiness, are fiscal policy measures, according to Fitch agency. Ed Parker, head of Europe, Middle East and Africa rating department said this. Mr Parker added that fiscal measures in Slovakia must continue. The Wall Street Journal informed about this on its website in Wednesday [ie. 7th September]. “Slovakia is on a good track with the government implementing fiscal measures. These must of course be made in order to reduce risks in public finance,” Parker said. Slovakia has had A+ creditworthiness rating with a stable outlook since July 2008, by Fitch. The agency then increased Slovakia’s rating from A. In June this year the agency confirmed Slovakia’s A+ rating.
